SPRING Wine List

INTRODUCTION

As we begin our partnership with Studio Voltaire, we thought it would be fitting to curate a wine list that reflects the ethos of the inspiring artists taking residency in this space. In a world where there is an abundance of somewhat overwhelming choice, we decided to take a different approach by writing a wine list that focuses on five individual producers, celebrating their life's work as dedicated artisans of the land.

Within each bottle, we see a different story of passion and dedication, as they encapsulate the unique nature of the terroir that they hail from and their creative vision. By shining a spotlight on the vigneron's stories and their philosophies, we celebrate not just wine but their commitment to the craft and the surrounding nature that serves them.

SLOBODNÉ

Hlohovec, Slovakia

Located in the picturesque Little Carpathian region of Slovakia, Slobodné is a family-run winery steeped in history. With the first vines planted in the early 20th century, they survived World War Two, only to lose their farm to 40 years of Communism. With the rediscovery of hidden documents, the family was able to reclaim the farm and restore it to its former glory. Led now by siblings Maria & Dáša and their partners, they craft wines that are as much about creativity as they are about terroir. Embracing biodynamic practices, their wines sing of the vibrant colours of their land, capturing the essence of the region in each bottle and showcase their bold and innovative approach to winemaking. Their winery boasts a variety of different vessels in which they ferment and age the wines. It is no surprise that by pushing the boundaries, they have become one of the leading natural winemakers in Europe.

SUERTES DEL MARQUÉS

Valle de La Orotava, Tenerife

Nestled within the rugged terrain of Tenerife lies the celebrated estate of Suertes del Marqués, overseen by winemaker Jonatan García LÍma. Here, they take a holistic approach to winemaking, paying homage to the island's unique terroir and indigenous varietals including Listán Negro and Blanco, Tintilla, and Baboso Negro. Situated in the town of Valle de La Orotava in the northern region of the island, the estate benefits from a terroir characterised by volcanic clay soils, steep slopes, and century-old vines. Each bottle from Suertes del Marqués recounts a tale of tradition, innovation, and an unwavering commitment to sustainability, perfectly encapsulating the essence of their dramatic surroundings and the enduring legacy of Tenerife's viticultural heritage.

EDI KANTE

Valle de La Orotava, Friuli, Italy

Situated in the extraordinary micro-climate of the Carso district, southeast of Friuli, Edi Kante's winery is perfectly located between the Adriatic Sea to the south, the Alps to the north, the low hills of Collio to the west, and the Balkan peninsula to the east. What stands out about Carso is the abundance of limestone and the very cool nights that provide respite for the vines, making it the perfect combination of terroir and climate that has been the backdrop to Edi Kante's poised and energetic wines for over 40 years. His wines wonderfully reflect his passionate, vibrant, and eccentric personality yet still showcase the unique terroir from which they hail. Kante's wines have an impressive ability to age, with his whites spending a year in older barrels, followed by six months or more in stainless steel on the lees before bottling them unfiltered. All of this takes place in an incredible three-story cellar carved out of solid stone beneath his house – the perfect artist's studio!

QUINTA DA MURADELLA

Monterrei, Spain

There's a small, relatively unknown Spanish municipality that sits alongside the Portuguese border, home to one of Spain's most exciting vigneron. A somewhat forgotten land since WWII and Franco's dictatorship, Monterrei DO is an ancient viticultural zone with winemaking history predating the Roman Empire, where vineyards populated the best hillsides and mountain locations. It took José Luis Mateo's love of the land to dedicate his craft to restoring the viticultural history for which it was once so famous, proving to those winemakers who fled for flat plains to make bulk cheaper wine that it remains a wonderfully unique terroir. José Luis works with over 24 indigenous Galician varietals, experimenting with different locations that have a variety of soils, such as schist, slate, quartz, and granite. His goal is to create wines from ancient varietals that emulate the very specific plot from which they are made – terroir at its finest – by vinifying and ageing in a variety of vessel, he views each cuvee as a blank canvas. This fluid, artistic approach can be confusing to follow but makes for some incredibly interesting wines.

DOMAINE AMI

Burgundy, France

Domaine AMI is the brainchild of close friends Paul Perarnau & Willy Roulendes, whose journey began at Domaine du Clos du Moulin Aux Moines in Auxey-Duresses. Striving for a departure from conventionality, they embarked on their own winemaking venture, releasing their inaugural vintage in 2014. Over the past decade, their Domaine has flourished, now encompassing 5.5 hectares of vineyards nestled amongst the elevated appellation of Maranges . Their wines beautifully straddle the line between traditional winemaking and the avant-garde ethos of the natural world, pushing the boundaries of what is considered authentic Burgundy. Operating both as a negociant and a Domaine, the fruit they source is all from good friends, who are organically certified growers. Through their wines, they artfully explore the diverse patchwork terroirs of the Côte d'Or, showcasing not only their exceptional winemaking skills but also their captivating and charismatic personalities.
