INDIGO

WELCOME IN!

Take a seat, stay a while. Our gathering and event spaces are great for coming together and connecting with others.

Whether you're looking for a place to let the creative juices flow, an intimate affair with your closest people, or a grand dinner for the whole company, we know how to let the good times flow.

Nestled in the heart of Clerkenwell, our hotel offers the perfect setting for your next meeting or event. We have a range of flexible spaces that can work for many different setups - even the more creative ones.

And while we believe there's no such thing as too much fun, we can also make sure that you and your guests get a good night's sleep. Our stylishly-designed rooms pay homage to the goldsmiths, architects and clockmakers of the neighbourhood's past.

So, welcome to Hotel Indigo London Clerkenwell. We can't wait to host you.

OUR SPACES

CLERKENWELL SUITE

Whether you need a space for creative ideas to come to life, go through the numbers with a fine tooth comb, or socialise with dinner and drinks, the Clerkenwell Suite is a wonderful space for people to come together.

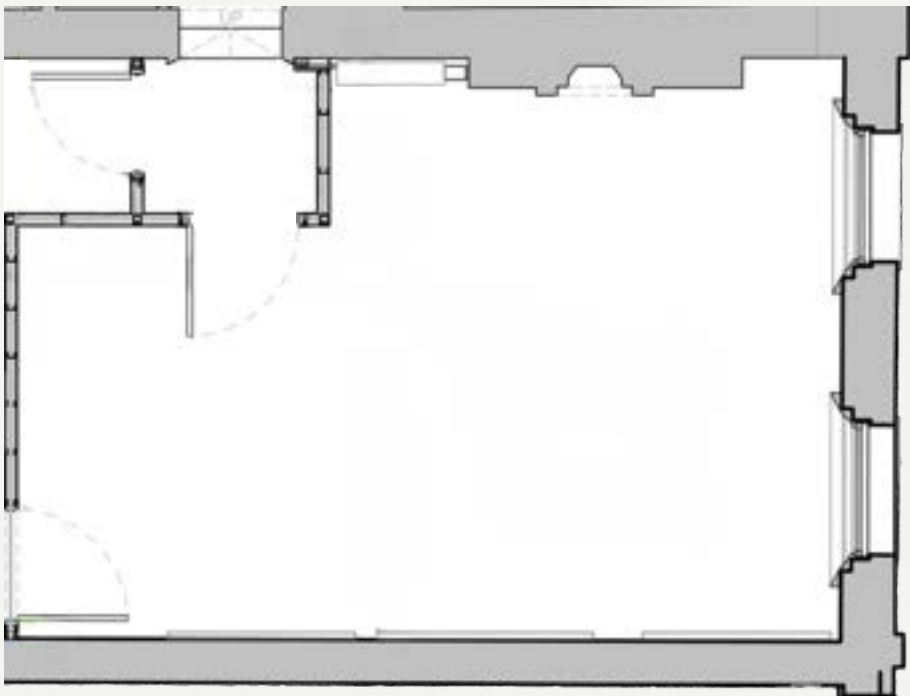

Located on the first floor of the Hat & Feathers pub, the room has plenty of natural light and everything you need to make your meeting or event a success.

HAT & FEATHERS

Our Grade II* listed Victorian pub sits as an extension of the hotel. Similar to the interiors of the hotel, the Hat & Feathers has been carefully restored with nods to its rich history.

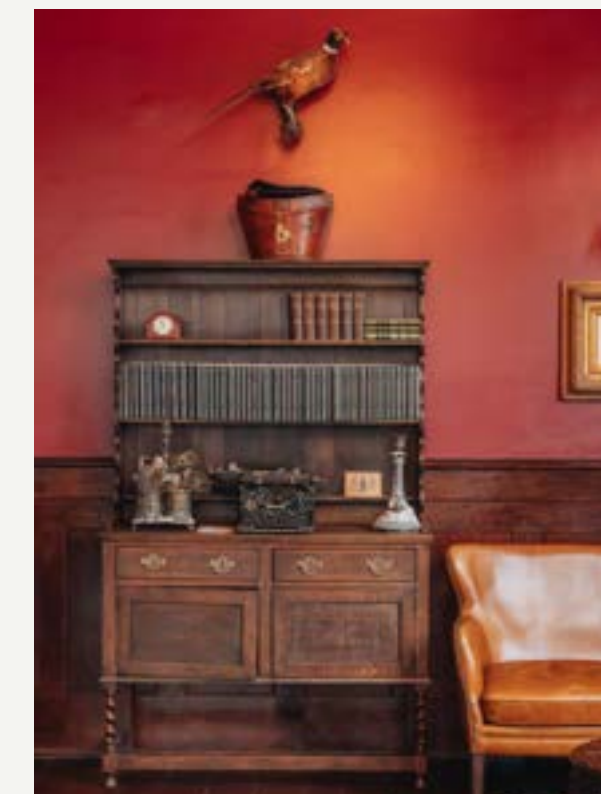

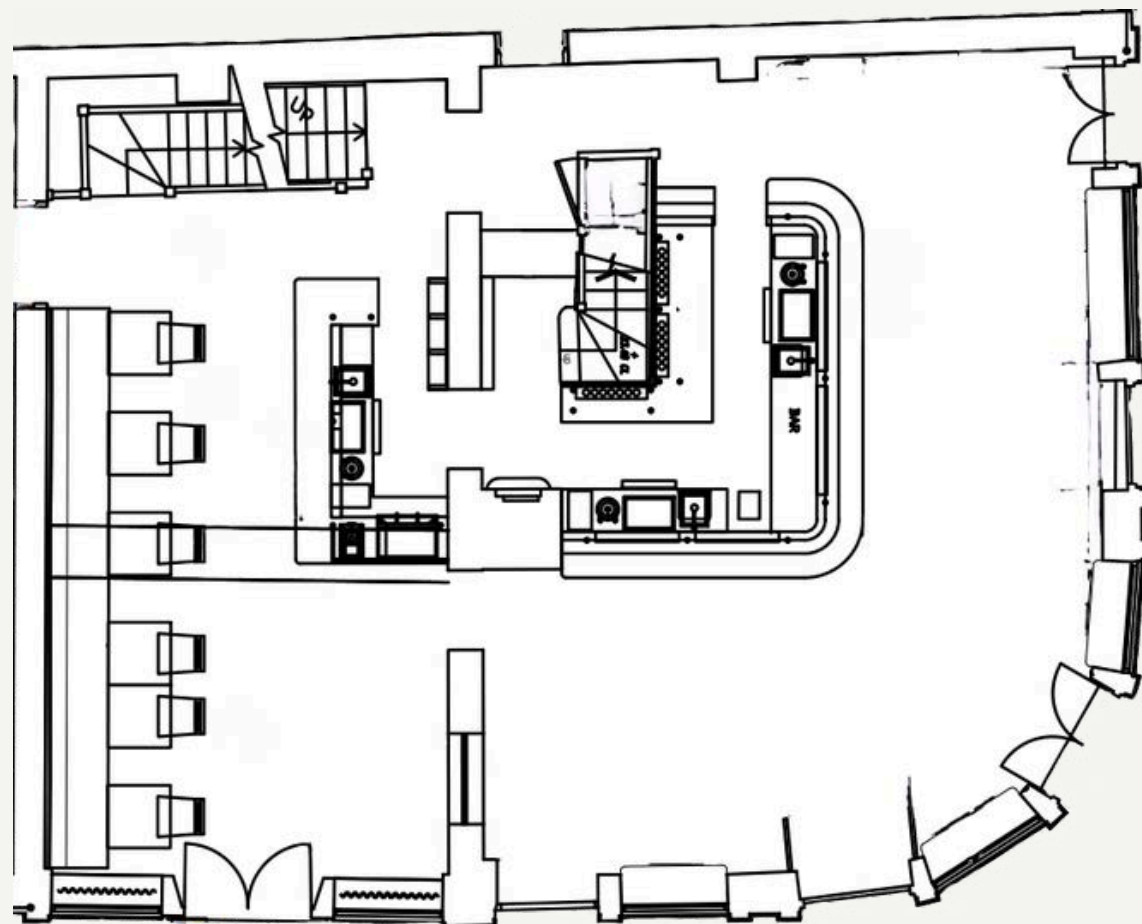

So whether you fancy fish & chips and an ice-cold pint of lager, or standing around the bar with your team, the Hat & Feathers gives you an informal place to get together - and that true British pub experience.

We offer semi-private hire for the Hat & Feathers, or can reserve an area for a smaller group.

THE NEIGHBOURHOOD

From illustrators to ceramicists, architects, and silversmiths, Clerkenwell owns the bold distinction of hosting more creative businesses per square mile than anywhere else in the country

Welcome to Clerkenwell - our fantastic corner of London. If you take a deep dive into the neighbourhood's history, you'll discover that for many centuries it had a distinctly roguish, raffish side to it, a loose-footed loucheness borne of its historic location just outside the city walls. This meant that it was outside the jurisdiction of the City of London, making it the perfect place for illicit activities to flourish.

It was not only for the poorer inhabitants: aristocrats used to sneak out of the city gates incognito to enjoy a night of gambling or to watch an illegal fight. This reputation for naughtiness continued into Victorian times, and it's no surprise that Dickens chose the neighbourhood's streets as the setting in Oliver Twist.

In more recent times, until the 1960s the south-western section of Clerkenwell was known as “Little Italy”. One of them, Charles Sabini, became famous as a gangster who ran protection rackets at racecourses across southern England.

Today, it is said that there are more creative businesses per square mile in Clerkenwell than anywhere else in the country. It’s a bold claim but a plausible one: just take a stroll around the area and you’ll pass buildings filled with every creative profession under the sun.

There are illustrators and tile-makers, ceramicists and textile gurus, lighting maestros, and stained glass experts. There are product designers creating bafflingly beautiful sofas just across the corridor from architects redesigning entire skylines for farflung cities. There’s even a clutch of silversmiths, a trade with deep roots in the area, whose exquisite wares are sold down the road at Hatton Garden.

So, pop out and explore one of London’s most exciting neighbourhoods!
