Where forever begins

THE BILTMORE
MAYFAIR

The Biltmore Promise

“Some places hold an atmosphere that cannot be designed. The Biltmore simply has it.”

There is a particular quality to Mayfair at its finest — a sense that time moves differently here, that moments are held rather than merely passing. The Biltmore has been that kind of place since the day its doors opened. It is not a backdrop for your wedding. It is part of the story itself.

From the chandelier-lit foyer on Adams Row to the soaring proportions of the Grand Ballroom, every space has been shaped with the understanding that the greatest luxury is attention — to detail, to feeling, and to you.

The Entrance

It begins before you enter.

Your guests arrive through the private entrance on Adams Row — a moment designed entirely for them. Elevated floral installations frame the threshold. A bespoke welcome display, conceived to reflect who you are as a couple, sets the tone before a single word of ceremony is spoken. This is not hospitality. It is theatre, quietly performed.

The Grand Ballroom

A room that knows how to hold a celebration.

The Grand Ballroom was built for occasions that matter. Its proportions are generous without being cavernous, formal without being cold. When the lights are lowered and the evening begins, it becomes something else entirely — a space that seems to breathe with the energy of the people inside it.

The Foyer, the Kendall Suite, the Waterloo Suite: each an extension, each considered. Together, they give your wedding the architecture it deserves.

The Intimate Spaces

For moments that ask for something closer.

Not every celebration calls for a grand room. Some of the most memorable weddings we have hosted have happened in spaces where the conversation never had to raise its voice — where the candlelight reached every face at the table, and the evening felt entirely private.

MANHATTAN SUITE

Looking out over Grosvenor Square, the Manhattan Suite carries the light and the history of its surroundings. Flexible by design — it can open generously or draw in close — it is a space that adapts entirely to the shape of your celebration.

WATERLOO SUITE

Refined and considered, the Waterloo Suite brings the same sense of occasion as the Ballroom — held within a more intimate frame. For a wedding dinner, a ceremony, or a reception where closeness is the point.

KENDALL SUITE

The Kendall Suite is the kind of room that makes a smaller gathering feel entirely deliberate. Beautifully proportioned and privately set, it is well suited to a wedding breakfast, an intimate ceremony, or an evening that belongs only to those inside it.

What we hold for you

The details that make it entirely yours.

Every wedding at The Biltmore begins as a canvas. What is placed upon it is a conversation. Our team holds relationships with London's finest photographers, florists, musicians and entertainers — and the experience to know when each one is right.

- Private ceremony setup
- Live musicians — ceremony or dinner
- Bespoke cocktail for the couple
- Whisky or caviar reception stations
- Audio-visual & production design
- Master of Ceremonies
- Portraitist or magician entertainment
- Bespoke photo or telephone booth
- Wedding Showcase invitation
- Menu tasting experience

Come and see it for yourself

An afternoon just for you.

Before your wedding exists as a date in a diary, we invite you to experience it as a feeling. Our Wedding Showcase is an afternoon of discovery — the Ballroom dressed, the table laid, the dishes tasted. Our specialists are present not to sell, but to listen. There is no better way to understand what your day will look and taste like than to walk through its rehearsal.
