MEZZOGIORNO MEETS LANDMARK

Fiume, an integral part in the unfolding story of the Battersea Power Station, this restaurant is set to become a firm local favourite with its authentic, fresh Italian flavours overlooking the piazza on the river's edge.

Francesco Mazzei, Chef Patron of Sartoria and Radici, world famous for Italian cuisine, is unveiling more of his talents. This time creating a menu that showcases the best of the Mezzogiorno region, most famous for rolling hills and stunning coast, pastel-colour towns and fresh produce.

Fiume, the Italian word for river, a tribute to its location on the banks of the Thames is made up of an elegant bar and restaurant, an open kitchen with a terrace sitting next to the Power Station and just in from the water's edge.

Fiume is an idyllic spot for indulging in fritto misto, a glass of Italian wine, or an occasion with friends, family or colleagues.

GROUP ENTERTAINING

Restaurant Groups

A beautiful and cosy open space, the restaurant at Fiume boasts vivid blue sofas and slick wooden surfaces reminiscing of the Thames flowing just outside its doors.

Comfortable seating and versatile layout makes it the perfect spot for meals with the family or impressing clients and colleagues.
