Beer Street and Gin Lane are two prints issued in 1751 by English artist William Hogarth in support of what would become the Gin Act. Designed to be viewed alongside each other, they depict the evils of the consumption of gin as a contrast to the merits of drinking beer. In Origin Kensington we proudly promote the highest quality beers only brewed locally and Gin Crafted in London from small company or as far as Great Britain shore limits.

ORIGIN GIN & TONIC SELECTION

Gin originates in Holland back in 1550 when professor of medicine Franciscus de la Boe was trying to concoct a cure for stomach complaints using the diuretic properties of juniper berries and stumbled on this wonderful infusion which he named Genever. The migration back to the UK with this new style liquor came from troops returning from the thirty years' war who were given rations of gin to keep out the cold before battle. The name gin is an anglicised version of the Dutch Genever but the modern-day product is very different. Dutch gin is thick rich and very full whereas London Dry gin is fresh dry and light. In over-crowded, slum-ridden Georgian London, gin was the opium of the people. For a few pennies, London's poor found entertainment and escapism from cold and hunger at the bottom of a glass. In 1730, it's estimated that the average Londoner drank a staggering 14 gallons of the stuff a year!
