Lebanon has a wine history dating back to biblical times and beyond; many believe that Cana, the site of the New Testament's famous "water to wine" miracle, is located in modern-day Lebanon. Château Ksara is Lebanon's oldest working winery.

It is situated in the heart of the Bekaa Valley, Lebanon's pre-eminent wine producing region. Winemaking began in 1857 when the 27 hectares estate was inherited by Jesuit monks. In 1898, the chance discovery of an old Roman grotto, stretching over two kilometres in length, provided an ideal cellar. By 1973 the Jesuits had quit the estate and a consortium of local businessmen began their investment, introducing modern viticultural practices. Château Ksara has grown to 440 hectares today, split over 10 different vineyards all within the Bekaa Valley.
