SAKE

Sake is brewed from short grain rice, kosi and water under strict supervision of a sake brewmaster. Rice is to sake what grapes are to wine and it offers a wide variety of tastes just like wine. Through its fermentation process, a depth of flavour called 'Unami' is achieved making sake a food friendly drink, enhancing the flavours of dishes it accompanies.

It has a much lower acidity than wine and contains no additives such as sulphites. There are approximately 2700 breweries all over Japan, with each brewery using different sake-brewing methods. Sake is divided into different categories according to the amount the rice has been polished, brewing style and production

Glossary

Junmai

Meaning 'pure rice', a Junmai sake is made using only rice and water producing a full bodied and slightly acidic sake. It goes well with a wide variety of food.

Nigori

A style where the sake is filtered through a wide mesh leaving fine rice particles behind. Results in a milky colour, gritty texture and sweet sake with strong flavours of rice, koji and yeast. Best shaken!

Honjozo

A premium sake; the grain of rice is polished to less than 70% of its original size. Dry and smooth, usually light, fragrant and crisp.

Ginjo

A premium sake; the grain of rice is polished to 60% or less of its original size. Fruity and fragrant with a delicate flavour.

Dai-ginjo

The pinnacle of sake where the grain of rice is polished down to 50% or less of its original size. Delicate and sophisticated flavours with an array of spicy, fruity and floral fragrances.

Ume-shu

A fruit sake infused with the unique Japanese ume "plums". Typically sweeter than traditional sake. A fantastic alternative to dessert wine.

SAKE

Choryo Sawasawa - Sparkling Junmai Nigori

Well balanced acidity and sweetness of tropical fruit flavours.
250ml bottle (serves 2) 15.00

Uragasanryu Koka - Honjozo namazume

Clean and light with hints of pear. Fresh and fruity.
100ml serving 7.00 / 750ml bottle 45.00

Hakutsuru Sayuri - Junmai Nigori

Fruity on the nose but light, smooth, full bodied and balanced making this ideal for spicy or full flavoured dishes. Sweet and fruity.
300ml bottle (serves 2) 20.00

Akita Yamatoshizuku - Junmai

With marzipan, nuts and koji on the nose - this is a fruity but elegant sake with minerality and soft edges.
720ml bottle 45.00

Gassan no Yuki - Junmai Ginjo

Starting with initial notes of strawberries, this sake transforms into and earthy savouriness on the palate. Smooth and fragrant.
300ml bottle (serves 2) 15.00

Tamanohikari - Junmai Dai-ginjo

With aromas of banana and honey, this is a refined, smooth and an easy drinking sake perfect for medium spices and seafood. Rich and mature.
300ml bottle (serves 2) 28.00

Oku-Echizen Ginkobai - Ume-shu

This umeshu offers a light harmony between sweet and sour. Light on the nose and easy drinking. Sweet and elegant.
100ml serving 6.50 / 750ml bottle 42.50

Nakajima Shiroku Yuzushu - Junmai base

Lemon meringue in a bottle! Contains the juice of more than 15 yuzu fruits, this citrus based sake is great with ginger and coconut flavour desserts. Sweet yet tart.
25ml serving 4.50 / 50ml serving 8.00
