ARGENTINE STEAKHOUSE

ARGENTINE WINEGROWING VALLEYS

NORTH

Argentina's Northern wine region is characterised by the altitude of its vineyards, among the highest in the world, growing at the heights that range from 1.700 to 3.000 meters above sea level in colourful valleys like Valles Calchaquies, in the province of Salta.

CUYO

Cuyo ("The Land of deserts") is both one of the driest and most fertile winegrowing regions.

It is also the largest in Argentina and the top wine producer in South America.

PATAGONIA

Patagonia is the southern wine region in Argentina. It includes the provinces of Rio Negro, Neuquen and La Pampa. Winters are harsh and summer nights cool, giving rise to harmonic combinations of sugar and acidity and plenty of aromas. Patagonian wines are traditionally more European in style.
