SELLY
MANOR  MUSEUM

A beautiful intimate wedding venue in the heart of historic Bournville

Selly Manor and Minworth Greaves are two of the oldest buildings in Birmingham. These beautiful houses were saved by chocolate manufacturer George Cadbury, then dismantled and moved to the heart of his famous historic garden village of Bournville, where they have stood for over 100 years.

The site is the perfect venue for a small civil ceremony in an intimate and friendly setting. Ceremonies will take place in the stunning medieval hall of Minworth Greaves, in front of the ancient oak dining table. The buildings are surrounded by a beautiful period garden which have something special offer all year round.

*Everyone commented on how beautiful a setting
it was and we got some gorgeous photos.
We couldn't have asked for more.*
