WEDDING TRADITIONS

EVER WONDERED ABOUT THE HISTORY OF WEDDING TRADITIONS?

During the marriage ceremony, the bride stands on the left and the groom on the right. The origin of this goes back to the days when the groom had to fight off other men who also wanted her as their bride. He would hold his bride to be with his left hand allowing his right hand to be free to wield his sword. Wedding rings are thought of as a symbol of eternal love due to their having no beginning or end. They are a symbol derived from ancient tribal customs involving the decoration of the bride with circles of flowers and grass around the wrist and ankles.

“Something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue and a six pence in your shoe”. On the morning of the wedding the bride to be should put a silver coin in the toe of her right shoe and step out (right foot first) for her last walk as a single lady. The coin is said to bring not just financial wealth but also a wealth of happiness and joy throughout married life. Wearing something borrowed, preferably something that has been worn by another happy bride at her own wedding is said to bring good luck to the marriage. In times gone by, wearing something blue represented purity and fidelity, usually an item of blue clothing or a blue band around the bottom of the bride’s dress.

Newlyweds are not considered to be married until they have eaten breakfast together – hence the term ‘Wedding Breakfast’. The term Honeymoon comes from the days when the groom would whisk his new bride away to a secret hideaway. Here they would remain for a full pass of the moon, and he would feed her honeyed wine.

Create your very own Wedding Traditions in our historic seventeenth-century surroundings, and pass them down for generations to come.
