The Conservatory

at the Luton Hoo Walled Garden

BACKGROUND

This stunning six-acre octagonal walled garden is set within the grounds of Luton Hoo Estate; the garden was established in the 1770s by John Stuart, 3rd Earl of Bute, friend and advisor to George III and consultant in the planning of Kew Gardens. "Capability" Brown designed the walls and for nearly two centuries the walled garden was both a botanical garden and the production centre for the Estate's fruit, vegetable and cut flower needs. The walled garden is now home to The Conservatory and is being developed to reflect the traditional use including the reintroduction of the plants, flowers, vegetables and fruit trees originally grown there in the eighteenth and nineteenth Centuries.

OUR VENUE

Every great event starts with a great venue and there can be fewer more exclusive locations than The Conservatory at the Luton Hoo Walled Garden. Finished to the highest specification, it has an outside decking terrace, integrated speech and music sound system, spectacular decorative lighting including pin-spots and a dance floor and stage.

Our team of experienced venue managers is on hand every step of the way to help guide and advise you, making sure that when your day comes around you can relax and enjoy every minute.

The Conservatory has been designed with flexibility in mind. Suitable for dining up to 250 guests with a separate reception area, stage and dance floor or for up to 400 guests for buffets and dinners.
